Shop found to be selling counterfeit cigarettes closed for three months

Leicestershire Trading Standards officers have worked with our colleagues at Charnwood Police, who obtained a Closure Order for International Supermarket, in Meadow Lane, Loughborough, which was granted at Leicester Magistrates' Court on Thursday 17th August. The Closure Order is for 3 months.

The Closure Order application included the history of illegal tobacco being sold from the premises.

Find out more at here.

Cheap, illegal tobacco brings criminality into our communities, increases the risk of selling to children, is an obstacle for those wanting to stop smoking and it creates an unfair trading environment for our law-abiding businesses.

You can report the sale of illegal tobacco on our website or via Citizens Advice Consumer Service at 0808 223 1133.

Stopping unsafe products at East Midlands Airport

Our officers operating at East Midlands Airport have stopped and seized almost 440,000 potentially dangerous or non-compliant items in the last year preventing them making their way into consumers' homes via shops and online marketplaces. These goods are worth more than £15.3m.

The team have seen a number of toy guns being imported by a number of businesses over the last year.

This gun fires pellets that are to be first immersed in water.

Toy Safety Regulations require that such items should only swell by 50%. This is because the product could swell dangerously causing a choking hazard if swallowed by a child. A product from an incoming consignment was tested and the toy gun pellets were found to swell by 382%. The toy is unsafe and will not be released for sale to consumers.

Our advice is always to be wary when buying goods in online marketplaces and if your child has a toy pellet gun, our advice would be to remove the pellets before use.

Scams in the news

Facebook hacking scam

We were contacted in June by a Leicestershire resident who sadly had their social media account hacked. They were contacted by a 'friend' on the platform, who unbeknownst to them also had their account hacked. The 'friend' asked for personal information, including address and date of birth, before requesting bank details for a "lottery win fund transfer". At this point, the resident became suspicious and ended the contact.

How can you stay safe whilst using social media?

- Pick a username that doesn't give away personal information such as your full name and keep your profile private.
- Be wary of publishing any identifying information about yourself, including phone numbers or pictures of your home or workplace.
- Don't use messaging hosted by the platform to send personal information and pictures because if the account is hacked this may become accessible to the hacker.

Great tips on safe social media use can be found at Get Safe Online.

“Hey Mum!” scam texts warning

The Chartered Institute of Trading Standards have warned parents and youngsters alike to be on guard against a new spate of text messaging scams.

In the scams, a text message purporting to be from the recipient's son or daughter claims that the sender has a new number or has broken or lost their phone. The sole purpose is to extract personal details and probably the transferring of money.

Take a minute and contact the person they are purporting to be on their original number.

Booking summer safe fun for the kids

Thinking about getting a bouncy castle or other hired equipment for your garden?

Make sure you ask the supplier for a copy of the most recent safety assessment, risk assessment and Portable Appliance Testing documents before you agree to the contract.

The bouncy castle should be adequately anchored with at least 6 anchor points. Electrical safety including the condition of the blower and it's cabling, and suitability of any extension leads should also be checked.

The supplier should provide clear instructions about safely using the equipment. Find a helpful checklist on safe set up from Bouncesafe.org here.

New rules for Financial Services

New rules known as the Consumer Duty came into force on 31st July 2022.

These new rules set a higher standard of consumer protection in financial services. Firms should provide helpful and accessible support, timely and clear information you can understand.

Don't accept poor quality building work!

Trading Standards East Midlands conducted a project into consumer behaviour and decision-making process in the home improvements sector. To help you make the most informed decision, consider the following actions:

- Check recommendations and reviews
